Inaugural Dinner of the American Society in London.

AMBASSADOR BAYARD PRESIDES.

A Permanent Organization Which Will Celebrate Our National Holidays in the British Metropolis-Preparing to Do Honor to Vice President Stevenson.

LONDON, April 20 .- Last night the inaugural dinner of the American Society in London was held at the Cafe Royal, presided over by the Hon. Thomas F. Bayard. the American ambassador. The banquet was given in the gilt dining hall, which was beautifully decorated with festoons of American flags. Over the chairman's table was a mosaic portrait of Washington, surrounded by American flags. A hundred and fifty of the most prominent Americans in England were present, and, In addition, some members of the Amerizan colony in Paris, who came to London especially to attend the banquet.

Mr. Bayard had at his right hand Hon. J. B. Eustis, American ambassador to France, and at his left Mr. Andrew Carnegic. The guests included the entire traff of the American embassy.

Mr. Bayard toasted the queen lu a felicitious speech, and then the president of the United States. Both toasts were received with uproarious cheering. In the course of his speech Mr. Bayard explained the objects of the society, and said he hoped it would always uphold American traditions. Much could come of this nucleus. American citizens could see nothing but good in

Mr. H. B. Chamberlain followed Mr. Bayard, proposing a toast to the society, and giving further details of its aims. He announced that some special greeting would be given to the Hon. Adlai Stevenson, vice president of the United States, on his arrival in London.

Replying to the teast "Our Guests," Mr. Eustis said that such a society as this ought to be organized in all the principal cities of Europe. He onlogized Mr. Bayard's distinguished services and predicted a glorious future for France under her new president. Mr. Newton Crane responded to the toast "The American Resident in London," Mr. Andrew Carnegie to "The American Binationalist," Consul General Collins to "The American Official in London," and Rev. Dr. Pentecest to "The American Abroad." Some three weeks ago Mr. H. B. Chamberlain, an old newspaper man, approached some of the leading Americans here with the object of ascertaining their views on the matter of forming a society. He also consulted Mr. Bayard and Consul General Collins, and found on all sides that the suggestions thrown out by him were but pehoos of the feeling entertained by all.

Mr. Chamberlain at once proceeded to work his scheme out in detail, and letters were sent to a number of American citizens, asking them to attend a meeting to draw up and consider plans. Accordingly a meeting of American citizens interested in the formation of an American Society in London, on the lines of the Ohio Society, the New England Society and the Southern Society in New York, was held at the United States consulate general on March 2, and after discussion a committee on organization was appointed by consul general, who was in the chair, and as a result of the work of that committee an organization was affected at a subsequent meeting and a strong general committee appointed.

The general committee is as follows: Ex-officio members: The American ambassador, the American military attache, the American consul general and the American naval attache

The working executive officers are: Benjamin Franklin Stevens, chairman; Humphrey B. Chamberlain, secretary and

The rest of the committee are: Walter H. Burns, Francis S. Blake, Frank E. Bliss, Poultney Bigelow, Newton Crane, Howard Potter, James R. Roosevelt. James C. Taylor, Roland K. Dennis, John A. Ferguson, Thomas L. Field, John G. Meiggs, George A. Mower, J. Morgan Richards, Ballard Smith, Frederick C. VanDuser and Henry White.

The Evils of Speculation.

New York, April 20.-R. G. Dun & Co,'s weekly review of trade says: In every speculative department business is growing, but this is really the least satisfactory feature of the situation. Cotton, oil and wheat climb above the export price, so that the marketing of products abroad must be checked, and money is absorbed which ought to be employed in productive industry and in distribution of products to consumers. Everybody knows that oil has not risen 20) per cent, because it is intrinsically more valuable, nor is wheat actually worth more than it was two or three weeks ago, but the expansive and uplifting force has unfortunately taken to speculation rather than production.

Probably Murdered by His Wife.

CLEVELAND, April 20.-Thomas Jones, a puddler, was found dead in his home just outside the city limits. He boarded with Eben Davis, and Mrs. Davis discovered the body on entering the Jones' room. Everything in the room was smeared with blood, and a chair in the room had been broken to pieces. Mrs. Davis had heard the couple quarreling, but Mrs. Jones, who was arrested, denies that she committed the murder. Prince of Wales to Visit Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., April 20. - The announcement is made here on the most reliable authority that the Prince of Wales will visit Newport during the coming summer. The information was furnished the representative of the Associated Press by a prominent society man who has just received a letter from England announcing that his royal highness will attend the rup races and spend several weeks at New-

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE.

A Financial Statement to the House by State Treasurer Jackson.

HARRISBURG, April 29.—The house granted enough special orders yesterday to keep it busy for a week. As nearly all the orders are for next Tuesday and Wednesday many of the bills for which this privilege was secured cannot possibly be reached. Some of the bills for which special orders were made are: The greater Pittsburg bill; Smith's school appropriation bill; increasing the salary of the adjutant general from $3,500 to $5,000 a year; providing that school books shall not be changed oftener than once every five years; making a uniform policy of fire insurance; taxing aliens and making their employers responsible for the payment of

A statement was received from State Treasurer Jackson showing the condition of the state finances. The state treasurer reports the fellowing:

Balance in the treasury March 31, 1845, less advances made to the legislature, $3.-284.805.59; amount due on account of appropriations for 1823, and which includes the common school appropriation balance for 1805 of $5.500,000, $7,370,321.40. In this total sum there are appropriations to five charitable associations and to the soldiers' orphans' industrial schools, of which no part has been drawn from the treasury, amounting to $105,500.

The estimate of the ordinary revenues of the state for the current year, ending Nov. 30, 1895, amount to $9.825.100. From this is to be deducted $369,371.50, transferred to the sinking fund, leaving an estimated revenue of $9,455,728.50, a total for the two years ending Nov. 30, 1596, of $15,-

In reply to the question as to the probable amount of revenue which could be derived during each of the next two years from a tax of sixteen cents per barrel on malt liquors brewed in the state, State Treasurer Jackson says he is not in possession of the data necessary to make such an estimate. Representative Fow estimates that such a tax will raise $1,250,000 revenue annually.

Mr. Reesh of Luzerne, offered a concurrent resolution calling attention to the overcrowded condition of the anthracite coal regions, owing to the constant importation of laborers from other sections, and calling for the appointment of a joint committee of six to confer with mine owners for the purpose of "promoting the welfare of a most needy and deserving people." House adjourned until Monday evening.

Resolutions were adopted demanding a restoration of prices for all kinds of those which prevailed previous to the last reduction, and requesting an answer on or before April 27.

TOBE TRIED FOR MURDER

Student Durant Charged with Killing Minnie Williams.

THE ACCUSED REMAINS SILENT.

By Advice of His Attorneys He Gives No Evidence at the Coroner's Inquest-The Murder of Miss Blanche Lamont to be

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—The usual crowd of curiosity seekers was present when the inquiry into the murder of Miss Minnie Williams was resumed yesterday. Durant and his attorneys were also present. Elmer Wolfe, the young man whose statements have been questioned recently, was recalled to the stand and offered to produce witnesses to substantiate all he had previously said in regard to his movements on the night Minnie Williams was murdered, but the coroner declined the offer, and both that official and the chief of police said they were satisfied with Wolfe's statements, and did not believe he was connected with the crime.

Dr. Bartlett, who conducted the autopsy, testified that Minnie Williams died of asphyxiation as a result of having part of her clothing forced down her throat by the murderer, and that the knife wounds found on various parts of her body were inflicted after her death. He also testified that the girl had been outraged, and that previous to the time of the tragedy she had led a blameless life. Several other witnesses were examined on minor matters, and the coroner then called Durant to the stand. The latter left his scat as if to present himself for examination, but his attorneys advised him not to speak, and no further effort was made to question

The jury did not occupy an hour in deliberating, and returned a verdict charging Durant with the murder of Minnie Williams. It was the case of her death only that was being investigated. The case of the murder of Blanche Lamont will be taken up later.

Miss Gertrude Taber, a stepsister of Elmer Wolfe, the young man whose name had been frequently mentioned in the case within the past few days, has come forward and identified the pocketbook which was found on the San Bruno road by a ciam digger, and which contained some papers, among which was a business card of Dr. Vogel, on the back of which was written the name of Miss Williams.

Miss Taber says that she missed the pocketbook some time ago while out riding near the Taber ranch, on the San Bruno road, and explained the presence of a card with Miss Williams' name on it by saying that Miss Williams visited her some weeks ago and wrote her address on one of Dr. Vegel's cards. Durant's friends say it is a peculiar coincidence that the pocketbook should have been lost by one so closely related to Wolfe and found at this critical time.

says that she has evidence for the defense which will go to upset the bearing of the statement of Witness Hill, who testified before the coroner's jury to the fact that he had seen a couple answering the description of Durant and the dead girl standing near the church about 8:30 on the night of the tragedy, and who afterwards entered the churchyard. Mrs. Durant says that a young couple had come to her and stated that they entered the churchyard about the time Hill claims to have seen a couple pass into the front gate.

Today the police received information from a laundry that a pair of bloody trousers had been left for cleaning. The police say that the trousers are too big for Durant, but that they will trace the clew to find the owner.

SHERIFF FATALLY SHOT

While Arresting a Gang of Horsa Thieves in West Virginia.

FULLY EQUIPPED FOR PLUNDER.

The Four Members of the Gang Surrender After One of Their Number Is Shot by One of the Sheriff's Posse-Sheriff Shaw's Condition Critical.

WHEELING, W. Va., April 20.-News from Kingwood, Preston county, this state, gives details of a fight with horse thieves from across the Pennsylvania line, in which the sheriff of the county was fatally shot and one other man wounded.

Late Thursday night a telephone message was sent to Sheriff Shaw from Albrightsville, three miles east of Kingwood, to the effect that four horse thieves from Brownsville, Pa, were there. The shortiff summoned three deputies and went to answer the summons. They shortly came in sight of the four thieves, who were on horseback. Sheriff Shaw pluckily approached the gang, and, grasping the bridle of the leader's horse, called on them to surrends. Quick as a flash the leader pulled his revolver and fired point blank at Shaw. The ball passed through the right lung, inflicting a mortal wound.

Ex-Sheriff Jackson, a member of the posse returned the fire. His ball struck a package of cigarette photographs in the murderer's upper vest pocket, just over the heart, and glancing. Inflicted a flesh wound in his arm and entering his horse's neck, killed the animal instantly. The man fell to the ground, and Jackson supposed he had killed him. These were the only shots fired, for the robbers immediately surrendered and were taken to Kingwood and lodged in jail.

It turns out that the arrests are of great importance, as a great number of weapons, dirk knives and keys were found on the persons of the prisoners, and there was found in their possession a number of gold watches and a quantity of jewelry, showing that they had recently committed a burglary. On one was found a manuscript copy of a secret organization. The striking feature of the laws compelled the leader to push forward in the time of dan-

One day I read of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, which I purchased and bogan taking, and improved greatly. I have now taken six bottles, and was never so well in my life. I can say nothing but kind works for Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, to which I owe so much. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature to do its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its ourative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials. Address.

THE GOVERNMENT SWINDLED. Uncle Sam Loses $100,000 by Undervalus-

tions at the Custom House. NEW YORK, April 20.-The disclosure of a great case of undervaluation at the custom house has caused the collector of the port, James G. Kilbreth, much annoyance. The amount of the undervaluation is said to be $100,000. The matter, briefly stated, is that O. L. Sypher, the importer of antique furniture, has been importing goods at a greatly undervalued rate. The matter was brought to the notice of the

A few years ago he was head salesman of the firm known as O. L. Sypher & Co. He said he had worked for the firm for fifteen years. During that time they had been importing antique furniture, old silver and tapestries. The firm, he declared, was continually importing loving cups, trays, and in fact all kinds of silver, as old silver, and paying the duty on old silver. These goods have been passed in through the Second division. One year ago H. W. Hart, now in charge of the Second division, vice Cyrus A. Stevens, appeared and stated that in the invoices of Sypher & Co. the goods were worth ten times more than the valuation. The case has been under investigation by Special Inspector, Dudley Phelps, who said today:

"Three years ago, when Syhper & Co. suspended, special agents suspected that they had been engaged in illegal practices, but they carried away and secreted all documents in a cellar in Mount Vernon. The customs authorities investigated the matter, but it was never completed, and the officials were very much annoyed."

Colonel Phelps thinks efforts have been made to stop the investigation. The official upon whom approbrium is east is said to be Eugene Honeywell. He is said to have been in collusion with the firm. He has been in the department for fifteen years. "While the charges are serious," said Colonel Phelps, "and are under investigation, the collector is inclined to think that the charges against Honeywell will prove to be nothing more than negli-

URGING RELIGIOUS UNION.

Pope Leo's Encyclical to Members of the Church of England.

LONDON, April 20.-The papal encyclical In regard to the union of the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches is addressed to the "English people who seek the kingdom of Christ in unity of faith." It opens with an expression of a long cherished desire to address them in a special letter, and thus give the illustrious English race a token of sincere affection. Continuing the pope says: infrequent conversations with our country men, who have testified to the kindly feeling of the English towards us personally. and to their anxiety for peace and eternal salvation through unity of faith. God is our witness to how keen our wish is that some effort of ours might tend to assist and further the great work of obtaining the reunion of Christendom."

The pope turns to all in England, to whatever community or institution they may belong, desiring to recall them to this holy unity. In this cause he calls first to his assistance the Catholics of England, whose faith and piety he knows by experience. He invokes St. Gregory, St. Augustine, St. Peter and St. George, and above all the Blessed Virgin to be his pleaders before the throne of God that he may renew the glory of ancient days. His holiness grants to all who piously recite the prayer to the Blessed Virgin appended to the encyclical an indulgence of 300 days, and he moreover grants a plenary indulgence once a month to those who recite it daily. The encyclical, which abounds in biblical quotations, concludes by calling the blessing of God upon the English

Chinaman Convicted of Murder. PHILADELPHIA, April 20.-Lee Gum You, a Chinese laundryman, was yesterday convicted of murder in the first degree in shooting Lee Hong Quong, a wealthy merchant and "Judge of Chinatown," on Nov. 29 last. The allegation was that You had written libelous letters about Quong, who caused his arrest therefor. Upon being released on bail You, in a spirit of revenge, went to Quong's place and shot him. You's defense was that he had been persecuted by Quong, who had several times caused his arrest on various charges. and finally seized his laundry and all his possessions. Loss of the Musical Faculty.

"Amusia," or loss of the musical faculty, has been reviewed by Professor Edgren of Stockholm. The disease proves to be strictly analogous to aphasia, the loss of speech, which may or may not accompany it. Two general forms are recognized-the sensory form, where tones cannot be appreciated by the ear or notes read by the eye, and the motor form, in which the patient cannot sing, play or write notes. Ballet places the expression of music between the emotional and the artificial or verbal language. Music is less complicated and earlier appreciated than speech. Many children sing before they speak, and Reyer has told of a child of 9 months who could repeat the notes exactly as played on the piano, while Dvorak, the musical composer, is said to have had a son who sang the "Fatinitza" march with his murse at the age of 1 Year. - London Public Oninion.

THE HOGAN BOILER.

Words of Fraise and Commendation from the Technical Press-The Re sults of the Recent Exhibition of the Beiler Discussed in the Iron Age, Electricity, Railroad Gazette and Other Trade Papers.

The trade and technical journals, which were represented at the exhibition of the Hogan boiler, in this city, April 9th, in writing up the exhibition, speak in terms of high praise of the boiler and its wonderful efficiency as an economical steam

The Iron Age (New York) of April 18th, devotes three pages of editorial space, with illetrations, to the Hogan boiler in operation at the works in this city and which was exhibited April 9th. Referring specifically to the visit of the representative of the paper in Middletown, the account says:

"An informal test before the representatives of the technical press, boiler manufacturers and users, was made of the boiler at the company's works on April 9th. This boiler is nominally of 100 norse power capacity. It was run for twenty four min-utes under a forced draft of less than one inch pressure and developed 211 horse power and evaporated 8.6 pounds of water per square foot of heating surface per hour. During this test the average temperature of the feed water was 44 degrees and the pressure maintained averaged 120 pounds."

The account in the Iron Age also summarizes the exhaustive tests of the hospital boiler made by Prof. R. C. Carpenter and closes with the foi-

"A general average of what may be called the 'stop tests' gave the fellowing: Anthracite pea coal 11 52 pounds of water per pound of com-bustible; soft coal 11.40 pounds of water per pound of combustible, and steam coal 10 93 pounds of water per pound of combustible.

"A corresponding average of what may be designated as the 'running testa' gave the following: Anthra-cite pea coal 12 65 pounds of water per pound of combustible; soft coal 12 20 pounds of water per pound of combustible, and steam coal 13,63 pounds of water per pound of combustible."

The issue of Electricity (New York) for April 17, says:

"The construction of a boiler which maintains a high evaporative efficiency under min mum and maximum demands for steam; which produces a positive and continuous circulation; which insures dry steam circulation; which insures dry steam at all times regardless of the conditions of firing or use; in which there is instant and continuous precipitation of all sediment in the water: in which no joints are exposed to the fire, in which the tubes are not liable fire; in which the tubes are not liable to injury from expansion, sagging, accumulations of sediment or over heating; which is applicable allke to land and marine uses has long been sought for by both boiler designers and steam users. For two years past the Hogan Boiler Co. of Middletown, N. Y., have been working on this problem, and the success with which they have met and the manner of overcoming all the atmanner of overcoming all the attendant difficulties in its solution were ably and satisfactorily demon-strated by a public test at the works of the company on Tuesday last.

The Railroad Gazette, April 12, contains the following:

"One feature of this boiler is the ir troduction of feed water at low The boiler does not use a feed water heater, part of its circulation system being a heater in itself, the incoming water being heated by the descending currents of heated water. The boller in the Hogan works has been in use for four months and during that time it is claimed that an evaporation of 15 98 pounds of water per pound of combustible has been reached during a six hour run. The 350 H. P. boiler at the State Hospital for the Insane at Middletown has been run up to 665 H. P. under forced draught. The Western Electrician (Chicago) in its issue for April 13 says: "The Hogan Boiler Company, of Middletown, N. Y., is giving every opportunity to experts to investigate the claims made for its vertical water tube bollers in practical work. A program was prepared for the public exhibition at the works April 9. which is of interest to the trade. The testing apparatus was so arranged that the quantity of water used and the amount of fuel burned were at all times clearly apparent to the spectator." This report, which by the date of the paper was necessarily written out before the tests were completed, is to be supplemented by further particulars in another issue. Very complimentary allusions are made in the paper named to the Hogan Boiler in the State Homcopathic Hospital. The Engineering and Mining Jour nal (New York), in the Issue for April 13, contains an excellent account of the company's reception on the 9th inst., in which is embodied a summary of the eddress made by Mr. Hogan on that occasion. Reference is made to the evaporative power of the boiler, namely, 7 to 8 pounds of

SATURDAY, APRIL 20, 1895.

The lower bouse of Pennsylvania's legislature defeated a bill repealing the oleomargarine law by the decieive vote of 113 to 30.

Estimates received by the Bureau of Internal Revenue from all the collection districts in the country indicate that the income tax will not bring more than $14,865,000 into the freasury. It is believed, however, hat the increased receipts from customs duties will afford the government all the revenue it needs.

The killing of the bill reducing telephone rates is one of the scandals of the legislative session. Wherever there has been danger of competition, rates have been reduced by the companies to figures far below those named in the bill, yet the agents of the monopoly had no difficulty in convincing reform legislators that the bill was a demagogic measure that meant the practical confiscation of telephone properties.

The investigation ordered by a Republican Senate of the charges made by the Republican New York Press that certain Republican Senators were bribed to vote for the bill increasing the pay of Fire Department officers in New York city, has been the signal for the disappearance from Albany of many well known lobbyists. They will not have to remain in hiding, for Republican investigators never yet investigated so as to discover any wrong-doing on the part of Republicans.

The stirring Americanism which characterized the remarks of James B. Eustis, Ambassador to France, at the dinner of the American Society in London, last night, created something of a sensation, for our diplomatic representatives in Europe are not given to plain speaking. Mr. Eustis told his hearers that the United States, though quite as strong as any nation on the face of the earth, had fewer sins than any other nation. It had never oppressed a weaker nation, had never assisted in the division and parcelling out of countries, and had kept down the spirit of conquest. Mr. Eustis said his country deserved credit for this because it knew its power, but If it ritory all Europe would oppose it, and the European press would teem with sneers at the filibustering spirit of Americans. Mr. Eustis spoke of the wonderful resources of the United States, of the energy and industry of the American people, and of his gratification at the way in which American products were winning their way in Europe. His remarks were received with great satisfaction by his audience, and he was cheered more heartily than any speaker of the evening.

Henry Clews' Financial Review cheer and encouragement. It says:

The most "bullish" class in the country at the present moment are the manufacturers. They are better estuated than any other class to feel and measure the first throbbings of a new impulse of demand; and it is their testimony, in almost every branch of trade, that the outlook is most encouraging. In many cases they have the courage to demand higher prices and to wait, if necessary, until they can get them. Their orders are on a larger scale than for the last two years, and they are increasing their purchases of raw materials in expectation that they may have to pay higher prices for them. The feeling, in short, is general that, providing the steadiness of the financial situation can be depended upon this country is on the verge of an eraof very unusual prosperity. We are in a position to produce at lower costs than ever before. In this respect, we have, within the last two years, made very important gains apon other manufacturing countries. The pressure of the new tariff has to some extent contributed to this; partly by compelling manufacturers to improve their methods and economize on the costs of producof some of their raw materials.

SOUL FRIENDS.

-Grant Allen.

They had been mutually attracted at once. At least, so Sada fondly believed. It was not hard for Sada to believe a thing when she wanted it to be so.

"He isn't at all my ideal man physically," she explained to her consin Tom. She was telling him, because he was the only person she knew to whom she could talk with absolute freedom. The fact that Tom loved her did not interfere with their friendship. She made a business of forgetting all about Tom's love. She had a happy faculty for forgetting everything she wanted to forget.

"He is little, round shouldered and not the least bit in the world handsome, but, oh, how my soul goes out to him!"

"Tom, dear," she went on after a little, touching her cousin's cheek caressingly, "do you believe in reincarna-

"I've never thought about it," Tom answered. That touch of Sada's hand had made his heart beat wildly in spite of ber frequent assurance that her caresses were only given him in a sisterly

"Hendrick and I must have been twins in another life. How else could we have known each other so well from the first?" Sada mused.

"And when are you going to marry him?" asked Tom in a husky voice, which he tried to make sound matter of Sadz looked at him pathetically. "How can you, Tom? I should think you would know I did not mean anything of that sort. I'm disappointed in you, Tom. Such a thing as marriage has never been mentioned between Hendrick and me and never will be!"

Tom was silent a moment, then inquired in a hesitating way, as if he were not quite sure how she would take his question:

"Did you ever pat his cheek as you did mine a moment ago?"

A rush of color came into Sada's face. "Of course not," she answered emphatically. "I'm not given to doing such things. Only there is something about your silly old face that tempts me when I am with you, but with Hendrick it is different. It is his soul that I care for.

Tom's first expression of relief was followed by one of mournfulness. What if Sada did speak in this way now? Of course she would be betrothed soon to the man whose soul had attracted hers.

A season passed, during which daily letters were exchanged between the soul friends. As the hour approached for them to meet again Sada could hardly

"Tom, dear, I am so happy! I have een counting even the minutes. said, when her faithful cousin put her in the car that was to take her to Summer Vale Springs, the trysting place. "Aunt Lucy was slightly indisposed yesterday, and I almost killed her with attention for fear she would not be able to travel today, "she added. "Now, kiss me, Tom, and hurry away, or you may be carried off when the train starts."

When Tom stood on the platform beside her window, she cried out:

"Smile! How dare you look solemn, you selfish boy, when I'm so happy?" The journey was very trying. She couldn't read, and there was no Tom to talk to. Aunt Lucy was no company. She was too poor a traveler. When Summer Vale Springs was reached, the soul brother was at the depot to help Sada off. She gazed jealously into his face, but did not tell him how she had counted the hours. Then began those delightful talks and walks. So much new music had to be conned, so many new books discussed. One day Sada made an unusually becoming toilet and asked Hendrick cautiously how she looked. He studied her attentively, and she found herself waiting breathlessly for his answer.

That night she wrote to poor, long suffering Tom: "Our friendship-Hendrick's and mine-is more ideal than ever. It is so soul satisfying." And Tom sighed as he said to himself, "She will tell me of her engagement in her next

At the end of the first week Sada said to Hendrick:

"I am making the most of my timegetting all of your life that I can. Soon you will tell your love to one of the many girls who cross your path, and she may object to our friendship." As she listened for his answer her heart almost ceased to beat.

"No, " Hendrick said slowly, "I don't think I shall. It is probable that I shall never marry, "

That night Sada cried herself to sleep. The next morning she tried to find out why she had cried. "It is because I am a woman, and women are senseless about some things, " she told herself furiously. A few days later Alice Baudret arrived at the Springs. Hendrick remarked that she was one of the most beautiful girls he had ever seen. A dreadful pain shot through Sada's heart, and sho fell into the clutches of the demon jealousy for the first time in her life. She had never liked Alice, voting her "a stupid," but now she cultivated her society assiduously, to the great delight of the fair girl, who had always longed to be more intimate with "clever Miss Sada, 1

One day Hendrick and Alice were discovered rehearing a vocal duet from a piece of sheet music belonging to Sada. For awhile Sada felt moved to do Alice some serious injury, but instead the simply burned the printed score when next she could lay hands upon it.

'I wonder if I could wound Hendrick as he wounds me?" Sada mused one evening, and then and there resolved to put the matter to the test with the first attractive newcomer at the Springs. The necessary victim arrived in the person of Frederic West, one of Hendrick's old and tried friends.

West was an Adonis, and admiration was lavished on him everywhere, but be fell into the trap Sada laid for him, and no wonder. Sada was noted for her powers of fascination. The Springs saw the other side of it. The gossips said that "Miss Banks was caught at last."

Hendrick looked on fer some time in silence. Then he gave his one sign. With his eyes calmly fixed on Sada's he

"You are only playing with Fred, but he is in earnest." And Sada's heart grew heavy and hopeless. West was no longer encouraged. Stnng by the change in her manner, he loved her more-wildly than ever.

One evening Sada slipped quietly into the music hall. It was apart from the hotel and cortages-a place Hendrick frequented of late when the rest of the company were busy with their own amusements elsewhere. He loved to seat himself at the piano and let his fingers wander over the keys as they would in the gathering darkness. "I must hear him play when he funcies he is all alone. Perhaps I may find out something he is hiding from me," she whispered as she stole into the room and concealed herself in a dark corner.

Soon Hendrick came in. Ah, how he played! And as Sada listened and listened her soul thrilled in response to the music. The small cares of life fell from her shoulders. Every lofty ambition she had ever cherished came back and possessed her. She was filled with a beau-tiful new joy. She longed to go to Hendrick, to put her arms around his neck, to say "I know! I know!"

Some one came into the hall, and Sada shrank farther back into her dark corner. The intruder was Frederic West.

"Old fellow, I want to ask you something," West said to his friend. "You know how I love Sada Banks. Why has she changed so suddenly? What makes her hold me at such a distance At the sound of his voice Sada was stirred with a deep shame for what she had done. It had been so cruelly unnecessary, so unworthy of her better self! Then she listened, with every nerve on edge. What would Hendrick say? Was this to be the hour of her triumph? Would Hendrick frankly explain that he was hers, and she was his? "Fred," Hendrick answered gently, forgive me for what I am about to tell you. I cannot say the same things to ing to avenge herself upon me. She would do anything to make me suffer. She loves me. She will wreck her whole life one day because she loves me!" A fierce auger took the place of shame in Sada's heart. Oh, what would she not give if she could strike down this man who had laid bare the weakness of any other man, but you will understand her soul to another. As West left the hall she went quickly to Hendrick. "I heard all that you told that about me," she said in a voice so frigid that she shivered as she spoke. "It may be just as well for your self love to tell you now that you are in error; that I do not care for you in the least. I never did. I have only amused myself playing at friends with you, just as I have amused myself making your friend love me! Why," and she forced a laugh, with only a mockery of merriment in it, "I have been for years the promised wife of my cousin, a good man, a man of honor. The day for our wedding is already fixed." Perhaps it was her laugh that betrayed her, or perhaps it was the better view of her face which the first beams of the rising moon gave him at that moment, but Hendrick knew that she had

. The next day she stood before him to say farewell. He looked intently into her face as though reading it. She carried his look with her until she died.

"What did he mean to say to me?" she sobbed as the train hurried her away from him. "What did he mean?" she asked herself again when, two days later, she stood beside Tom and called heaven to witness that she would love, honor and obey him till death should part them one from another. Foolish, happy Tom! She said to him the moment they met, "If you will marry me tomorrow, you may," and he had taken her at her word.

"What did he mean?" she asked herself again and again as the years went by. She is asking it yet. One day, when she is born into that other life, where souls know as they are known, she may cease to ask it, but not till then.

Meanwhile she is not unhappy. Good, faithful Tom walks beside her and smooths her way. Tiny arms twine themselves about her neck. Prosperity attends her. It is only the ever present question that keeps her just a little short of satisfaction. - Kate Field's Washing

Dear Sirs—I have been a tobacco fiend for many years, and during the past two years have smoked fitteen to twenty cigars regularly every day. My whole nervous system became affected, until my physician told me I must give up the use of tobacco for the time being at least. I tried the so-called "Keeley Cure," "No-To-Bae," and various other remedies, but without success, until I accidentally learned of your "Baco-Curo," Three weeks ago to-day I commenced using your preparation, and to-day I consider myself completely cured; I am in perfect health, and the horrible craving for tobacco, which every inveterate smoker fully appreciates, has completely left ree. I consider your "Baco-Curo" simply wonderful, and cun fully recommend it.

He had chewed tobacco for over forty years, and the last year used over sixty-five pounds the commenced using "Baco-Curo" and one box did not have the effect, when he had used about one-half of the second box he began to lose his taste for tobacco, and when he had used one-half of the third box he had lost all his appetite for it, and is now entirely cured. Yours truly, J. C. TAYLOR, Druggist.

This is to certify that I. F. D. Kraemer, of Atlantic, Iowa, was an inveterate smoker of cigarettes for more than two years.

About eight weeks ago I bought three boxes of "Baco-Curo" I began taking it according to directions, and after taking one and one-half boxes, all the desire for cigarettes left me, and I have had no desire since

I can heartily recommend "Baco-Curo" to all who are slaves to the digarette babit or tobacto habit in any form, and are in search of a cure. I had become so under the influence of cigarettes. I could not remember anything; could not study, unless under the influence of the drug, which is death in the end if kept up.

Cigarettes are sapping the lives out of more boys and young men to-day, than anything that is known to the world. Boys, before it is too late get some of this remedy that killed the craving for cigarettes in me and save your young life. Restore yourself to manhood. You will feel as though you had escaped an awful doom, and you have, when cured by "Bace-Curo," for you feel bled a new being I never fell better in all my life than at this present writing. I did not know what was the matter with me, until informed by the agent. He told me what was the reason bould not do anything unless under the influence of the death-dealing pois on found in cigarettes:

The weight the looks and then the unfortunate cigarette weighter. I remain, Yours respectfully.

How Dougherty's Timepiece Stopped a Bul-

let Aimed at His Heart. A silver watch, carried in the upper pocket of his vest, directly in front of the heart, was all that saved the life of Martin Dougherty of Wissahickon, Pa., recently. The watch was smashed to pieces by a bullet from the revolver of a robber, who, with two others, was stealing brass fixtures from an engine. A second shot sent another ball whizzing through the calf of Dougherty's leg.

Dougherty and another workman were working at the new pumping station, operating hand pumps to draw off the water from around the building. Dougherty was obliged to go to the lower side of the building about 1:30 o'clock, when his attention was attracted by voices.

He approached the doorway and saw three men engaged in detaching the brass work from an engine. He heard one say, "Oh, this wrench won't fit," so he shouted to them to let the engine alone. The one nearest him wheeled about, drew a revolver and replied, "Throw up your hands and duck your head," accompanying his words with two shots.

All three men then took to their heels, two going toward the falls and the third in the same direction toward the park drive. Though shot and bleeding and nnarmed, Dougherty pursued the latter, who was the shooter, until, weakened by less of blood, he fell to the ground.

He was much exhausted from shock and the loss of blood, but his condition is not critical.—Philadelphia Press.

THE "THIRD DEGREE."

How Superintendent Byrnes of New York Employed It In a Recent Murder Case.

I wonder how many people know what the "third degree" really is. Columns have been written about it, but I have never yet seen an accorate description of the process of extorting from the criminal a confession on the Byrnes plan. It is simple enough, however. The famous New York superintendent merely organizes modern inquisition in the deep recesses of his retreat at police headquarters and marshals his facts before the criminal.

In the case of Caesar, the negro who was recently arrested in New York for the murder of his mistress, a negro girl, he used first moral suasion, and later an apparition of the murdered girl appeared, from where is a mystery, upon the wall of the room in which Caesar was closeted with Byrnes.

The blood stained carpet was held up before his eyes. The superintendent told him to take hold of it and examine it. That settled it. Caesar broke down and made a full confession, and the "third degree" was again vindicated. -St. Louis Republic.

THE LOSSES.

An Estimate of the Mortality In the Recent War In the East.

The close of the war between China and Japan, now apparently close at hand, makes an estimate of the loss of life quite interesting.

Mr. Matsu, secretary of the Japanese legation in Washington, has made a calculation which shows that the Japanese have had 912 killed and 2,061 wounded. The Chinese loss is about 8,000, not including the wounded. But the fact is that the reports in the dispatches regarding-the casualties to the Chinese are not reliable, and they probably really lost twice as many as Mr. Matsu has figured out.

running most of the time; otherwise the results, so far as their armies are concerned, would have been far more disastrous. - Washington Post.

Biggest Western Land Lease.

The territorial school land department recently consummated at Guthrie, O. T., the biggest lease of land ever made in the west. The lessees are D. Waggoner & Son, cattle dealers of Decatur, Tex., and the lease is for five years and covers all the school land in Roger Mills, Day and Woodward counties, or 532,800 acres. The sum of $17,250.83 per annum is paid for the lease. It is the intention of the lessees to graze cattle on the new lease, and 60,000 head will be placed ou grass within a few weeks .-Kansas City Times.

Where Are the Others?

Chicago's claim of having 200 poets lacks verification. There is Eugene Field for No. 1 and Harriet Monroe for No. 200, but if there are 198 between them they must have tethered their several muses and gone into pork. - San Francisco Evalution

Mr. Posdick Learns the Value of an Encyclopedia.

Mr. Fosdick sat in his library reading a newspaper. He threw the sheet aside, rose and went to the bookease which contains his encyclopedia and ran his eye along the volumes. He did this two or three times. and then he spoke, making a great effort to be calm, and succeeding about as well as most men succeed when they try to be galm in the bosom of their families. This is what he sant:

"One of the unexplained mysteries is why the particular volume in an encyclopedia set which you want to consult is always the one that is missing from the bookense. Another of the mysteries which I despair of ever heaving satisfactorily explained is why you people can never return a book to the case after using it.

"Which volume is it you want, dear?" asked Mrs. Fosdick meckly, she being included in the term "you people," used by Mr. Fo-dick "I want the volume with the E's in it. There is an allusion to Mount Etna in the newspaper which I want to verify, and that particular volume is the only one of the whole two dozen which isn't in its proper place. Mrs. Fosdick went to the bookcase and began to search its shelves. Then she looked in another bookcase, but without success, and her hasband expressed his unalterable convertion that either his wife or his daughter had removed it from its place and failed to return its

"I believe Ethel did take it to her room the other day," said Mrs. Fosdick after a moment's thought.

"Ethel!" Ethel was curled up in a big leather chair reading a novel and had taken no part in the discussion. "Yes, mamma."

"Didn t you take a volume of the encyclopedia to your room the other day when you had to write an essay on Emerson?"

"I believe I did, mamma." "You must have left it there. Hurry and bring it down." Ethel left on her errand, and Mr. Fosdick occupied the time in delivering some extempore remarks on the way women had of dropping things wherever they happened to be, regardless of the place appointed of their keeping. "It makes me so cross." he continued. "to find my books of refer-ence anywhere and everywhere but where they ought to be, that I am seriously considering the advisability of locking up the reference bookcase. Volumes of that character should never be taken from the library, under any circumstances. Now, I am always very particular myself to replace a book on its proper shelf as soon as I am through with it. Well, where is it?" he asked, as Ethel reappeared without the

"Iremember now that I brought it back as soon as I was done with it, papa," said

"But that's impossible, child. You must have left it somewhere. It isn't in the cave."

"Oh, now I remember!" exclaimed Mrs. Fordick. "Well" queried her husband, "You are the one who took it away and forgot to bring it back are you?" "No, sir, it was you, yourself! Don't you remember that you got interested in an article on Egypt and brought it up to my room to read it to me night before "I—I—I believe I did." "It's in my toom yer. I know. I saw it this morning and I intended to bring it down to the library. Ethel, I think you'll find it on the bureau in my room.' Miss Fosarck made another trip up stairs, and her father maintained a stolid silence during her absence. When she returned, she had the missing volume in her turn its leaves in silence, as the incident seemed to call for no turther comment from him. His wife said nothing, either. She simply thought. Presently there was another impatient exclamation from Mr. Fosdick. "What is it now, dear?" she asked, "Look at that," he replied, pointing to a place on the open page. She looked and read this line: "Etna. See Ætna."—Life.

WHAT OUR NEIGHBORS IN SUL-LIVAN COUNTY ARE DOING.

All the News from All Parts of the County-Many Matters of Interest Condensed from our Sullivan Ex-· changes and Contributed by Wide-Awake Correspondents.

-Larry McGrath has purchased from the executors the residence of the late Catherine Carrier, in Liberty, for $3,800.

The Register says that the indications are that much building will be done in Liberty, this spring. Several buildings are now under way.

-A novel civil damage case is to be tried at the May Oircuit, in Monticello. In 1892, James Davis, a hotel keeper at Summitville, shot and killed Theodore Warren, an O. and W. employe. The coroner's jury found that the killing was done in selfdefense. Warren had been drinking at Davis's hotel, and on the theory that he was crazed by liquor sold him by Davis, his heirs have sued Davis for pecuniary damages. J. M. Maybee is plaintiff's attorney.

-Briscoe Pond, which was quite popular as a resort for pickerel fishermen, is no more, the dam having been carried away by the recent Preshet.

-Attempts at burglary have recently been made on Dunn's and Heath's stores in Monticello. The attempts were bunglingly made, and are supposed to be the work of local talent.

-The steel cells are now being put in the Monticello jail. The two cells for women are already in place, and the six cells for men will be comsoleted next week.
